

Supplemental Digital Content #2

Mental demand and effort were more pronounced in RNs taking care for COVID-19 patients (A). Concomitantly, galvanic stress response and skin conductance were significantly elevated as measured by biosensor worn by RNs (B).

A Comparison and box plots of self-reported stress (TLX)

B Comparison and box plots of biometric stress (sensors)

