Determining the Preferred Arthroplasty Procedure for Hip Fracture in Older Adults

Current practice patterns related to the choice of arthroplasty vary widely in the management of displaced femoral neck fractures in older adults.

This retrospective cohort study investigated the patient characteristics for which unipolar or bipolar HA or THA are preferred.

The final choice of arthroplasty procedure in older adults must be individualized based on specific patient characteristics.